In communities across the country, young people have been standing up, sharing their stories, and demanding a safer future for their families and friends. Their energy has fueled efforts to make America safer from gun violence. Giffords launched the Courage Fellowship program in 2018 in order to provide a select group of young people the opportunity to refine their skills and work together to reduce gun violence. This fellowship provides individuals with the tools and resources to support gun violence prevention efforts in communities across the country. Giffords is proud to announce that the application for the third class of Courage Fellows is now open.

Over the course of five months, Courage Fellows between the ages of 17 and 21 will be placed at the heart of the gun violence prevention movement and engage in an array of activities that focus on advocacy and effective organizing, with particular attention paid to the upcoming presidential election.

In compliance with CDC recommendations, Giffords is delaying the start date of the Courage Fellowship. We still anticipate accepting a 2020 class of Courage Fellows and are currently reassessing the logistics of the program. The new deadline is Sunday, June 7 by 11:59pm ET and we are currently accepting applications. We strongly encourage any interested individuals to apply. If you have any questions, you can contact us at couragefellows@giffords.org.

ABOUT GIFFORDS

Led by former Congresswoman Gabrielle Giffords, Giffords is an organization that works across advocacy, legislation, litigation, and research to save lives from gun violence. Since 2013, Giffords has helped write, pass, and enact legislation that is reducing gun violence and saving lives. Against fierce opposition, we have helped to pass over 350 new gun safety laws in 46 states and Washington DC. We are also leading the fight against the gun lobby’s dangerous agenda by introducing and passing bipartisan solutions to make our country safer from gun violence.
COURAGE FELLOWSHIP PROGRAM COMPONENTS

Fellows will participate in a leadership development program designed specifically for 17 to 21-year-olds interested in gun violence prevention advocacy.

Throughout the program, Fellows will:

› Learn from nationally recognized leaders in the gun violence prevention and greater progressive movements
› Network with other young activists from around the nation
› Develop and implement a gun violence prevention project in their local communities
› Build critical team-building, communication, organizing, and advocacy skills

Given the CDC recommendations related to the coronavirus, the dates of the fly ins have not yet been determined. We will provide updates to applicants as information becomes available.

WHO SHOULD APPLY?

We are looking for the next generation of leaders in the gun violence prevention movement. The ideal candidate will:

› Have demonstrated interest in politics, community organizing, activism, or volunteerism
› Be willing to learn new skills
› Have a strong desire to become (or already are) active in the gun violence prevention movement

"The Giffords Courage Fellowship gave me an experience unlike anything else. The comprehensive trainings set me up for immense success as an advocate and I wouldn’t trade that for anything. Plus, the people I’ve met through this program have become some of my best friends and I can’t imagine doing this work without them!"

FAQS

Do I need experience in gun violence prevention to apply?
No. We are looking to build a diverse class of Fellows with varying backgrounds and experiences. The only requirement is that you are passionate about fighting gun violence and willing to work with others towards this shared goal.

What is the anticipated time commitment?
The Giffords Courage Fellowship is a five-month program that includes three 3-day in-person trainings, webinars, and a project in between trainings. The take-home project may require a substantial amount of time for planning and organizing. Fellows with longer travel time may have to miss class for the trainings.

What is the take-home project?
The purpose of the take-home project is for the Fellows to utilize the skills they learn from the first and second trainings by taking action in their local communities. The ideal project will be substantive, engaging, and locally focused. Fellows will brainstorm project ideas, subject to approval by the Giffords staff, throughout the first and second trainings. Past projects have included:

› Voter registration drives
› Press conferences
› Town halls with local elected officials

While Giffords staff will be available to advise and guide the Fellows throughout the project’s development, it will be the responsibility of the Fellow to ensure the successful completion of their project. Upon completion of their respective projects, the Fellows will present the results to one another and Giffords staff.

What kind of funding is provided?
Giffords will cover 100 percent of costs related to engagement events. This includes supplies, hotel, flight, food, etc.

Please contact couragefellows@giffords.org with any questions or concerns.

"Being a Courage Fellow was one of the most impactful experiences of my life. I learned a lot about organizing, got to meet some incredible people, and developed a much deeper passion for gun violence prevention work."
